"SfA because he doesn't enjoy answering questions"
"SfA - least liked subject, does not enjoy doing any of this work, even ..."
"Topic lessons As it breaks the day up and you find them interesting"

Further Responses

"SfA, long lessons and not a massive fan of writing lots, so no fault on the teacher or subject."
"Oak lessons can be confusing."
Oak Academy maths has been a struggle at times. Not engaging."
"Maths, it's something that as a parent I can't help with at all."
"No subject in particular, just home learning in general. Feedback from teachers for work submitted and support from them when they are struggling with a task has been amazing."
"SfA, lots of handwriting and difficult for parents to grasp methods at times."

Further Responses

"Maybe hold live maths lessons as this seems to be the trickiest subject?"
"Explain answers in maths?"
"To have a weekly one2one with their teacher?"
"I'm not sure but maybe make it a bit more exciting if that is possible to stop loss of concentration?"
"Just regular afternoons off. I think we both breathe a sigh of relief when there is nothing planned or just an optional activity. Maybe something along the lines of go out and take a photo of nature to upload as an activity would be nice? Or a baking task!?"
"Perhaps a rota to hold a lesson or two each week for a small groups of the class, making it slightly more structured for the kids."

Responses also included lots of comments about workload and it being reduced.
